the ENTRY

WHY WE LOVE IT

Entry halls often suffer from “too small/too big” syndrome—good luck finding one sized just right, where you feel welcome but not overwhelmed. Positioned at the center of the home, this graciously scaled foyer clearly demonstrates Albert, Righter & Tittmann’s understanding of size and proportion. To emphasize the room’s connection to the outdoors—one end opens onto the entry courtyard, and the other opens onto a private garden—the designers added wrought-iron lanterns made for exterior use. Solid limestone floors invite dress shoes as well as dirty boots, while the carefully paneled walls and ceiling introduce the scale of the hand.
